Raising a Perfect Child
(A Mother’s Day Reminder)

— from Eagle Song, by the Imperials

David and Elizabeth were near neighbors of ours for a number of years in Meadow Pointe during our younger years. Great people! Great parents! David was a funny guy. I’ll never forget a classic line of his about parenting. It painted the practice on the canvas of reality as plainly as anyone could portray it. Reflecting on the time when they had but one little shy, introverted, compliant girl, David said, “For years, when I would hear other parents talking about all the problems they were having making their kids mind, I would think, ‘What’s the matter with these people?’ In fact,” he said, “I even started thinking about writing a book on parenting. You know, to try and help out the poor, inept types who can’t see how to raise perfect children. But then,” he went on to say, “Jonathan was born.”

When You, Then God
Keith Chandler, Journey Christian Church

When you do X, then you get Y
When you're kind to people, they tend to be kind back.
When you save money, then you have more money.
When you take care of your car, it tends to last longer.

We understand when you get X, then you get Y.

But would it surprise you to know that we serve a when, then kind of God?
Throughout the Bible, God teaches this. God says to Adam and Eve, “When you stay away from that tree, then I’ll make your life good.”
It continues with Noah. “When you build this boat, by these specifications, then I’m going to save you and start all over with you.”
Then Abraham. God comes to him and says, “I know you’re old, but when you put your trust in me, then I’m going to make you the father of many nations.”
It continues with Moses. “When you choose to follow me, then I’m going to have you lead my people out of slavery.”

Throughout scripture, God is letting us know that when you do X, then you get Y.
Why is so important for us?
There’s a tendency for us to drift one way or the other in the way we view the Bible. Some drift toward the idea that the Bible is simply our get out of hell free card. Read enough of it to know the prayers and the things you got to do in order to escape hell and go to heaven. Once you figure that out, you think, “I don’t need to read the Bible anymore. I’ve done what I need to do.”
Others see the Bible like ancient literature. We put it on the shelf with our collection of other books. The truth is, the Bible is filled with all these amazing principles that God wants to do in our life, but he’s basically saying, “Your move. When you do X, then I will do Y. But I’m waiting on you.”

Until next month,
Keith

The Kingdom of God is other-worldly, transcending Earth’s cultures, religions, ethnicities, races, and traditions. It’s not defined by any of those natural things and, instead, operates in and through and beyond and despite any of those things. The Church was brought into existence by the will of God as the spiritual organism for exalting Jesus and spreading His Kingdom on the earth.
The Church is made up of people called out of every culture, religion, ethnicity, race, and tradition to become one Family unified under one King who has given us a common Image and Mission defined by a common Book that tells us to take one Message to the world—the King and the Kingdom have come.
And right there is where things break down because we like our idea of “oneness” over God’s. Our idea of oneness is almost always sameness. God’s idea of oneness is unity. So, though we live in the most culturally diverse nation on the earth, our churches often don’t reflect that diversity as we still have white churches, black churches, Hispanic churches, Asian churches, etc. And instead of our denominations being representative of our diversity, they instead are often the reason for our divide.
If we’re not careful, we will let this separateness that we’re so comfortable with play out at the Well, too. We’ll be tempted to stick with what we know and who we know and sit with those who look like us. But we can break that mold and be to each other what this otherworldly Kingdom is all about! We can refuse to duplicate at the Well what we know is broken.

We can join the revolution Jesus started when He broke down the dividing wall between Jew and Gentile. The gaps between us will shorten as each of us continually and intentionally takes a step away from what’s comfortable and moves toward someone unfamiliar or just plain different from ourselves. That’s how a church, and that’s how a city, are won!
Canines for Christ
By Karen McBride

Canines for Christ is an animal therapy ministry. Volunteers and their dogs visit people in cancer centers, children’s homes, nursing homes, hospitals, prison ministries, and other places where people are in need of God’s comforting words and the unconditional love and affection dogs can bring.

Chaplain Larry Randolph started Canines for Christ in July 2007. It has grown to over 300 volunteers in the Tampa Bay region. The teams visit over 60 centers in the area, including Brighton Gardens, Connerton Court – New Tampa, John Knox Village, James A. Haley Veterans Hospital, Shriners Hospital for Children, Hope Lodge at Moffitt Cancer Center, and Gulfside Center for Hospice Care.

If you are interested in becoming a volunteer, you must complete an application, are required to have a certificate of health completed by your veterinarian, provide the AKC Canine Good Citizen or Therapy Dog Certification, and sign a liability waiver. Dogs must be two years old to enter the ministry, well-mannered, and non-aggressive.

Volunteers must be Christians, share God’s message of love and hope, and, of course, be willing to spend time to visit with the patients. Canine for Christ volunteers are needed for an upcoming event at a camp for people with disabilities. Volunteers can choose from Monday, May 29 from 2–4pm or Tuesday, May 30 from 1–3pm. The camp is located at Lake Aurora Christian Camp, 237 Goldenough Rd., Lake Wales, Florida 33898.

Umbrella Policies

Many people with auto and homeowner’s insurance wonder if a personal umbrella policy (PUP) is really necessary. If you own property or have other assets, you should strongly consider umbrella insurance.

A PUP covers a much higher limit and goes above and beyond liability directly relating to your home, boat, jet ski, RV, golf cart, and auto. The main purpose of your umbrella policy is to protect your assets from an unforeseen event, such as a tragic accident in which you are held responsible for damages or bodily injuries.

You don’t have to be a millionaire to need that much coverage. For example, say you’re hosting an outdoor dinner party and a balcony collapses, injuring several people. If those people are unable to work for a few months, you could be responsible for their unpaid earnings, along with any medical bills. This can quickly add up to more than the $100,000 or $300,000 liability limits on your homeowners policy.

The personal umbrella policy would kick in at this point. It is designed to save you from major claims and lawsuits. As a result, it helps protect your assets and your future. Without a PUP, you could be stuck paying the remaining balance of a claim out of pocket.

Underlying liability limits must be 250/500 on auto and $300,000 on home. An umbrella policy only pays once your basic liability limits have been exhausted. The claim will be made against you, the policyholder, on behalf of the wronged party. Then your insurance company may pay the settlement amount up to the limits of your coverage.

The average personal umbrella policy with limits of $1 million typically runs about $800 a year. The average cost of bodily injury liability settlements are $1 million or more, an umbrella policy is definitely worth it.

You may also cover your business with commercial umbrella insurance. Similar to a personal umbrella, a business umbrella policy picks up where your business auto liability, general liability or other liability coverage stops. Rather than increasing total limits, umbrella insurance is an inexpensive way to provide extra coverage.

How Dare You Create A World So Full of Misery

Dr. Dianne Coffin
Co-Pastor, River of Life Church

The Bible tells us that through one man’s offense (Adam) judgment (death) passed upon all men. However, it was through one Man’s righteous act (Jesus) the free gift came to all of us. This fallen world was NEVER God’s intention, but HE would NEVER override Man’s will. His heart was broken when Adam and Eve disobeyed. He had warned them not to do so, as NOT to have this world ravaged with the likes of that serpent. His desire was a creation that would fellowship with Him and never have to endure the pain of any injustice, pain, or disease. The question, Stephen Fry, is NOT “How dare you create a world to which there is no outlet, and yet you STILL sent your Son to die in their place, so that fellowship be restored?” Food for thought! We invite you to come join us at River of Life Church in Lutz, Florida. Our services begin at 10:30am on Sundays. We would love to have you come!

Honorong Mom

Samantha Taylor
Samantha Taylor Fitness

Moms give so much of their lives to raise their children. Most of the time, she gives up her time and schedule to be there for whatever her kids need. And in the midst of caring for everyone else, Mom often doesn’t take care of her own health. She carefully packs everyone’s lunch but her own. She makes sure everyone gets to their sports and activities but her own. What Mom doesn’t realize sometimes is that by not taking care of herself, she cannot give as much as she can to those kids because she is just so tired by the end of the day.

Of course, that is not the case for all moms, but the thousands of moms I have helped lose weight say before they start our program, “I just wish I had more energy and I felt better to be more active with my kids.” I had one client who lost 4 sizes and helped her children come off of sugar as well and she said, “I am so much happier as a mother.” I didn’t realize how irritable I had become with these three boys. It really is so different raising kids when you are healthy and fit.

Many moms regret sitting on the sidelines instead of being engaged with them. Many moms have admitted to me that that they don’t feel as confident about their body compared to the other moms so they feel embarassed showing up at events and interacting with other people and that they are not as happy as they used to be and that makes them grouchy and snappier with their kids. And by the time the evening rolls around, she has given so much of herself without taking time for herself too that when it comes time to spend time with her husband, she just feels too tired and wants to go bed.

Then I hear the other side of moms who do take action and invest time in themselves. They learn that it’s not selfish and it’s actually for the family too because when mom is happy and feeling good, that affects the whole family. I have had husbands hear their client tell me, “thank you for giving me my wife! She is happy again!” A good visual is that if you keep pouring out the water in a pitcher and you never put water back in, that pitcher will not have any more water to pour out for others.

It’s so important as mothers that we take time to take care of ourselves, too. When we do this, our bodies are strong and we have lots of energy and stamina to be the super mom that we are. Women are amazing, and being a mother is a whole other level. Give yourself the gift of taking care of you, too! You are not only doing it for yourself, but you are also doing it for your family.

You want to be able to play with those children on the ground and easily get back up, to be able to watch them graduate, to hold their new baby and babysit those grand-children without being bogged down with a bunch of medical issues. I know it might be a ways down the road, but thinking about what that woman body looks like in the future is so important. Most people that deal with medical issues wish they would have taken care of their body. I know some medical issues are not avoidable but doing something to prevent the ones that are is the key.

Give yourself or your mother the gift of health and wellness and contact us for a complimentary Body Transformation Analysis so you can see and feel how much better you will feel when you are healthy!

Thank you so much for the Disney on Ice tickets. The timing was perfect. My five year-old grandson’s visit just happened to coincide with the ticket dates. He absolutely LOVED the show. The look on his face when the show began was priceless. I definitely had a memorandum little boy in my presence. The show was entertaining from start to finish. Everything was perfect from the costumes to the music. Afterward he asked me, as well as his mom, what were our favorite parts of the show. My daughter and I agreed that we liked the Little Mermaid best. I asked him about his favorite, and he enthusi astically replied, “Cars.” This was a great way to kick off his weekend visit. Thank you so much for the opportunity to win the tickets. Sincerely, Bonnie C.

A World So Full of Misery

Dad and I were the happy recipients of four Disney On Ice tickets. My hus band couldn’t make any of the showtimes, so we invited some friends of ours and gave them two tickets. Their mom even had Disney ears made for the occasion! My Grace (the little one in the top picture) just turned 2 and she was mesmerized by all the music and skating and dancing for two whole hour! She loved hanging out with her friends. What a great birthday experience! Thank you from Rebecca and Grace!

The short answer is yes! Even Jesus speaks about taxes directly, reference Luke 20:25: “He said to them, ‘Then give back to Caesar what is Caesar’s, and to God what is God’s.’”

Romans 13:7: “Give to everyone what you owe them: If you owe taxes, pay taxes; if revenue, then revenue; if respect, then respect; if honor, then honor.”

You see, how I pay taxes is a direct reflection of my integrity. Here are a couple beliefs that I have:

1) Paying income taxes is not a “bad” thing
2) Integrated tax planning is critical to long term financial success

I work very hard for you on this, it’s what I do.

3) Income tax planning requires legally specialized expertise. What is good for one home may be different from another.

4) Getting a large refund check can be a sign of poor stewardship. I know, I know, some people like that “surprise lump sum.”

5) Even Jesus and the disciples paid taxes to the Romans, and we know they disliked the Romans.

That info in itself is a lot to think about and process. Sorry. I do not have room to elaborate, but we can set aside some time to get into the core of this topic.

That is the truth plainly we commend ourselves to everyone’s conscience in the sight of God.

In the past ten years, we have had countless speakers. Some have come back time and again by invitation because they were so vital to our message.

This year I need a little extra grace. Many have come and gone, some we could handle. We try to mix the mixture into a low pile, toss a bag of topsoil on it, then let the sun dry and mix with a rake. Caution, though, personally I wish there was a flat tax, but that is just me. Keep it simple and everybody plays.

1 Peter 5:7

• Tax reduction should never be the “tail that wags the dog.” Examples: Tax shelters and mortgage deductions.

• Inability to pay taxes that are due is symptomatic of poor planning. Taxes should never be a source of cash flow problems.

• Tax reduction and debt reduction are in direct conflict with one another. In order to decrease your taxes, you must decrease your income, which decreases your ability to pay off debt.

• Ultimately, all income, from whatever source, is taxed.

• Tax avoidance and Tax evasion are two entirely different things.

• Disregarding with the government is not a legitimate reason to not pay taxes

2 Corinthians 4:6: “Rather, we have renounced secret and shameful ways; we do not use deception, nor do we distort the word of God. On the contrary, by setting forth the truth plainly we commend ourselves to everyone’s conscience in the sight of God.”

And I also send with you this verse, which is a great set up for next month, Investing! Proverbs 13:11: “Dishonest money dwindles away, but whoever gains money little by little makes it grow.”

I know this is a stressful topic on so many levels. Planning and expecting to pay taxes helps to avoid increased trauma. Personally I wish there was a flat tax, but that is just me. Keep it simple and everybody plays.

Caring for you and yours,

Jim

I think you get the picture. Suffice to say that child number two had a somewhat different temperament then child number one, resembling, at times, the sweet and pleasing manner of a cat caught in a ventilator fan. It wasn’t long after my friend gave up on his book project. Raising the perfect child is the title of this article. But it’s a tickle title. If it were about what it sounds like, I would certainly need to save my fingers for a more honest venture, like say, counting baloons. I mean, my wife and I sure didn’t pull off that feat with any of our three children. Great daughters! But alas, a little more like their parents then we could have wished. Truth be told, my parents missed the mark about as far as my first tee shot did the fairway.

Flawed seed
And therein lies the point behind this article, the answer to the mystery behind why no parents ever prevail at raising perfect children. It’s simply because the presence of imperfection is as potently prolific in all us parents as it is in all our posterity. What was true of David is true of us all.

“Surely I was sinful at birth, sinful from the time my mother conceived me.” (Psalm 51:5).

I’m hoping this is making some hurting mom feel at least a little bit better. I know there are some moms out there who are being very conscious moms pining because of a prodigal who never made it home. Memorial Day became a federal holiday in 1971, when Congress shifted it from May 30th to the fourth Monday of May. The end of the century, the holiday was rechristened as a day to honor all American soldiers who died in battle as far back as the Revolutionary War. America interacted its first Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery on Armistice Day in 1921.

Every Memorial Day, this soldier and other unknown soldiers are honored with a wreath-laying ceremony conducted by the President or Vice President. They are reminders of all those who’ve never made it home. Memorial Day became a federal holiday in 1971, when Congress shifted it from May 30th to the fourth Monday in May, giving federal workers a three-day weekend.

All across America, veterans and civilians still gather in parades and vigils to remember the generations who gave their lives for their nation’s freedom.

It’s the three-day weekend that officially kicks off summer vacations… a time for hanging out at the beach, barbecuing, and even a few laps at the Indy 500. But Memorial Day is also the most solemn American holiday—a day to remember those who made the ultimate sacrifice, while defending their homeland. In the Civil War, America’s bloodiest chapter, over 600,000 soldiers were killed in action. Almost every community in every state suffered the loss of young men. As the war came to an end, mourners in both northern and southern states began placing flags and flowers on the graves of fallen soldiers.

The town of Waterloo, New York is officially credited with starting the holiday. On May 5, 1866, its citizens honored their sons and businesses so that everyone could decorate the graves of the men killed during the war. Then an old general had an idea: John A. Logan, leader of the Union Veteran Association, spearheaded an effort to unite all the decoration services into one national holiday, designating May 30th as Decoration Day.

On the first national Decoration Day in 1868, 5,000 war widows, orphans, and other mourners gathered at Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia. And it was on that day that the tradition of decorating the graves of fallen soldiers began.
